

DAIRYMEN OF COUNTY HOLD ANNUAL FETE

MORE THAN 200 PRESENT AT BANQUET

College Cafeteria Is Scene of Affair; R. P. Jarrett and T. C. Thompson Speak

Looking forward with a spirit of optimism, dairymen of the county, their families and invited guests, more than 200 persons, were feted at the annual banquet of the Randall County Dairymen's Association, which was held in the College Cafeteria, Friday evening. Faced with the financial depression, the dairymen's association experienced little trouble in financing what is probably the most successful banquet ever held by that organization.

County Agent W. H. Upchurch presided as toastmaster. Musical and vocal numbers were furnished during the evening by the Canyon Novelty Orchestra. Invocation was said by Rev. C. E. Jameson, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

A welcome to the guests was extended by H. M. Rockwell, president of the Association, in a brief talk. He stated that the object of the meeting was to create good will and to enjoy an evening of mingling with friends.

Dean R. P. Jarrett of the West Texas State Teachers College, T. C. Thompson of the Thompson Hardware Company, Dr. B. M. Primmer, of the city and county health unit of Amarillo and W. W. Atwood, creameryman of Amarillo were speakers of the evening's program.

In his address Dean Jarrett voiced a welcome on the part of the College to the dairymen for their visit to the institution to hold their banquet. He called attention to the fact that the college and dairymen were working along the same principle. He declared that the college was working with an unknown quantity in training the students to fill various tasks when they go out into the world. On the other hand he stated that the dairymen in preparing his product for market was dealing with an unknown quantity, as he attempted to distribute a better product.

"Knowing this to be true," Dean Jarrett said, "a brotherhood between all of us can be better developed."

T. C. Thompson, in addressing the group, stressed the object of the association, and complimented the spirit of the dairymen to rise over the temporary depression and upon their vigorous fight to eliminate outside and unfair competition of their product.

The entire staff of the Amarillo city and county health unit were present including, Dr. E. W. White, city veterinarian; Dr. B. M. Primmer, head of the unit; Dr. Geo. T. Royse, city physician; Jack Wyatt, chemist; Miss Ora Largent, vital statistics; Mrs. Fred Martin, laboratory technician; H. E. Hargis, sanitary engineer, and Mrs. Hargis.

Two Banquets Of Exes Announced For This Week

Two banquets are planned by ex-students of the college for this week-end in two counties in the Panhandle.

Tonight at Panhandle, with President J. A. Hill as the main speaker on the program, the exes of Carson county will gather at the Panhandle Inn at Panhandle for a banquet. Preparations have been made to entertain more than 60 former students of the college.

Accompanying President Hill and L. N. George, secretary of the Ex-Students Association, will be the College Quartet which will render several numbers on tonight's program in Panhandle. J. T. Glass has been in charge of the arrangements for the banquet.

On Friday night ex-students of Swisher county will meet in Tulsa at the Presbyterian church. It is stated that an interesting program has been planned. An extensive drive has been staged to have every ex-student of the college here and now living in Swisher county present at the annual banquet. A large attendance is expected.

Supreme Court Ruling Affects One Local Bill

AUSTIN, March 24. (Special)—On last Wednesday the Supreme Court of Texas issued an opinion far-reaching in its effect upon the passage of local bills. These bills have been passed in the past legislatures, seemingly with no regard to the constitutional provision that they must be advertised 30 days before being acted upon, and furthermore drawing them with a population provision which would make them effective in one city or county, without naming the city or county. Most of these bills refer to the larger counties of the state, and lawyers and legislators are hurriedly scanning the statute books to see just which local bills will be affected by this ruling.

The only local bill so far known affecting the 123rd district is that giving the 47th judicial district an assistant district attorney. In view of the fact that a bill has already passed the house to correct this bill, and will soon be acted upon by the senate, will forestall any possibility of danger in this court. Other local bills affecting this section may show up soon which will have to be cured.

It is stated that possibly 2000 local bills are affected by the ruling of the supreme court, and it may take a special session of that legislature later in the year to correct all of these measures.

Hold Epworth League School Here This Week

The Epworth League Efficiency School which began Monday is running more smoothly than any ever held in Canyon, according to Miss Mattie Mae Swisher who has been working for several weeks to complete the plans. Between seventy and seventy-five people are taking the courses, which are being conducted by Virgil M. Gore, Field Secretary for the Northwest Texas Conference, Miss M. Moss Richardson, Mr. Stuart H. Condron, Miss Ruth Lowes, Mrs. C. A. Murray, Mr. C. A. Murray, Mrs. Elizabeth Fry Page, and Miss Swisher.

The studies this year deal with missions, social service, recreational problems, and beliefs of young people. Special lectures have been given by Bishop E. C. Seaman, Presiding Elder L. N. Lipscomb, both of Amarillo, and Rev. Madiera who has been a special guest at one service. Most of those who are attending the school which is held between the hours of five thirty and eight thirty, are college students who expect to work in the church organizations of the communities in which they will live after leaving college.

Rev. C. E. Jameson who is taking an active part in the school is much pleased with this year's group and with the excellence of the programs which are being used. The school will close Friday evening.

Announcements have been received telling of the birth of Barbara Ann to Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Hazlewood at Ithaca, N. Y. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hazlewood are graduates of the college. Barbara Ann accounts for the smile on the face of W. T. Hazlewood. She is his first grandchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelley of Pampa are the parents of a baby girl born March 14. Mr. Kelley was formerly associated with A. E. Terry in his studio here. He is now a member of the public school faculty at Pampa.

Mrs. Berl Mayfield returned Thursday from Fort Worth where she has been visiting friends for the past week.

Graduates of Canyon School Make Splendid College Record According to Report Southern College Association

A rather interesting fact was revealed lately by the yearbook of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. Each year this association collects data upon the success of all of the graduates of its member schools. The percentage of failures in the freshman year at college is taken as a basis for rating the quality of work done by each of the member high schools.

Out of the 14 Class A high schools in the Panhandle the Canyon High School graduates show the lowest percentage of failure in college. This remarkable record is all the more interesting when it is realized that the Canyon school has a greater percentage of their

PIONEERS OF PANHANDLE ARE EXPECTED

Three Sessions of Historical Society Will Be Held Here on April 10

Canyon will be the mecca for hundreds of pioneer settlers of the Panhandle-Plains country on April 10th when the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society will hold its annual meeting at its headquarters here at that time.

Following a precedent set in 1930, the body will hold three sessions, the first at 11 in the forenoon, the second in the afternoon, and the third at night. The night meeting is purely social and will be a dinner at Cousins Hall.

The morning program looks to the future of the organization. At this time J. A. Hill, president of the West Texas State Teachers College will introduce to the students of the institution all of the prominent pioneer citizens who are able to be there for the gathering.

H. E. Hoover, Canadian lawyer, will present to the college people and friends the great museum project which the society has undertaken.

The two hours from 12 until 2 o'clock will be given over to informal visiting by the members and friends of the society, with lunch at the college cafeteria.

Each year finds some members of the Historical Society removed by death. It has become a custom of the group to remember the contributions to Panhandle life which have been made by such members. This year Judge O. H. Nelson, second president of the society, and pioneer citizen of the region, will be among those so remembered.

The business session will consider the problems and plans connected with the building of a suitable museum for the housing of the great collection of materials which the society has accumulated in the ten years it has existed.

Officers will be elected. At present Mr. T. D. Hobart of Pampa, who has just retired from the presidency of the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, is president of the Historical Society. H. E. Hoover of Canadian is vice president, and these with J. A. Hill, Canyon; W. H. Patrick, Clarendon, and H. M. Russell compose the board of directors. Mrs. T. V. Reeves, Canyon, is secretary; W. L. Vaughan, Canyon, treasurer, and Prof. L. P. Sheffy, Canyon, is field secretary. Members are to be found in all parts of the state of Texas, in California, Ohio, Massachusetts, New York, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Missouri, and Washington, D. C.

Lockney High Students Visit College Plant

The West Texas State Teachers College Plant, including the college farm, was the goal of 21 students of agriculture who came from the Lockney High School last Thursday to get some experience judging dairy cattle. High-point men will be chosen after these trials, according to Donald Turner, the instructor in vocational agriculture. The winners will compete in contests at Texas Technological College and at A. and M. College.

The Tierra Blanca Farm, one mile from Canyon, and the John Haines farm north of the city were also visited by the boys, who included the judging of both Jerseys and Holsteins on their trip.

Buffaloes Begin Spring Football Training Monday

With five basketball and several tennis crowns of the T. I. A. A. safely in the halls of West Texas, Coach Claude Reeds marched his crop of gridmen from the halls of learning after a breathing spell of four months, back to the gridiron at Buffalo stadium Monday afternoon to begin spring training with the vision of the 1931 football title of the T. I. A. A. as an inspiration to increase the fame of Buffalo athletes.

About 30 men had their appearance for the first workout of the spring training session which will last for the next five weeks. Reeds will drill the squad on the fundamentals of his football tactics which have produced successful grid teams for West Texas during the past few years, as well as send the men through workouts that will aid them to round into playing condition more readily next fall.

Coach Reeds expects to see some 50 or 60 men out by this week-end. With comparatively few losses from the 1930 squad, which finished in second place for T. I. A. A. football honors, and the addition of a bunch of huskies from Mitch Jones' hard-fighting squad of Yearlings of last fall, Reeds is faced with a wealth of material around which to build his team, compared with the task of the past season which saw only two lettermen return to the Buffalo ranks.

Barring all accidents indications point to a successful year in 1931-32 in athletics at West Texas.

SECOND ANNUAL HERD SCHOOL TO OPEN THURSDAY

MANY PROMINENT MEN TO SPEAK HERE

Hundreds of Farmers, Dairymen and Breeders Expected to Attend School

The second annual Herd Improvement School at the college will get under way next Thursday with a program which is expected to attract farmers, dairymen, swine and poultry breeders and ranchmen from every part of the Panhandle.

The department of agriculture of the college has arranged the program with the co-operation of several Panhandle county agents and others, and has assembled an array of specialists in a number of different fields.

R. V. Miller, chief, division of field seed certification, State Department of Agriculture, Austin, will be the headliner in the discussions of seed and its importance in farm economy.

Dr. Verne Scott, professor of veterinary medicine of John Tarleton College, Stephenville, was considered one of the most valuable men on the program in 1930 and his services have been secured again this year.

On Friday the dairy farmers will find the programs of particular interest to them. J. R. Edmunds, district supervisor of county farm demonstration work, will discuss the part of the county agent in the promotion of dairying. Professor A. L. Darnell of College Station, will explain to dairymen how Master Dairy Farmers are chosen. At the same session, J. W. Watson, Master Dairymen of 1930, of the Zita community, Randall county, will tell of his experiences in feeding silage from trench silos.

Saturday will be given over largely to poultry, with E. N. Holmgren of A. and M. College as one of the principal speakers. It is hoped that some special attention can be given to boys at the Saturday sessions, with the future farmers of America as special guests.

Last year the Herd Improvement School was an experiment; it was attended by nearly 100 farmers, from as far north as Perryton and as far south as the lower Plains. Professor Phillips states that the indications are that many more will attend this year. "Farmers, both young and older, are striving to solve their present problems by the application of science, just as are the industries," he says, "and such short courses as this one are planned to assist them in every way." Besides the lectures, Mr. Phillips pointed out, the three days give opportunity for a great deal of valuable, informal exchange of ideas and information.

Summer School Plans at West Texas Continue

Plans for the Summer Session are being worked out as rapidly as possible since President Hill's return from Austin last Saturday. The faculty for the summer session will probably be announced during the coming week.

Advertising material is going out to students interested and many inquiries are being answered each day.

There is an indication that a large number of students will enter with the mid-spring term which begins on April 20. Many schools throughout the country are closing and the teachers are making their arrangements to come in for a half-term's work. Social classes and courses will be arranged to meet their needs. Dean R. P. Jarrett is working on this problem during this week.

It is generally believed that both the late spring and summer sessions will be well attended.

BIG PROBLEMS AHEAD
By CLYDE W. WARWICK,
Representative 123rd District.

The real problems confronting the 42nd legislature are now pending and from now until the end of the 120-day period on May 13th the legislature will be busy day and night trying to solve some of these questions.

The various committees have very largely completed their tasks of passing upon the most important bills. These have been printed and are on the members' desks waiting to be studied and passed upon in open session. It is generally predicted that the legislature will not be able to complete its labors in the 120-day session, owing to the mass of pending bills which are more complex in nature than any past state law-making body has seen.

Governor Sterling has taken a definite stand in leadership. He has sent to the legislature two important measures—one asking for a redistricting of the state so far as judicial districts are concerned, and the other to create a new oil and gas division, taking this work out of the hands of the Railway Commission.

The governor is convinced that at least ten district courts may be abolished.

His recommendation as to the Oil and Gas Commission is a result of the disruption in the Railway Commission which caused former Governor Pat Neff to be replaced as chairman. It is stated that this commission has entirely too many divisions and too many problems. On top of these it is suggested that the proposed Utilities Commission may be unloaded on this department.

The teachers of the state are bombarding the legislature with requests for a large appropriation out of the general revenue to supplement the per capita apportionment. It is stated that unless some relief comes the per capita will not amount to more than $14.50, the coming two years. Superintendent Marrs says that this will disrupt the schools of Texas.

It is expected that another fight will be staged as to the penitentiary system. A request has been filed for a half-million dollars to start a new industrial plant on the farms near Houston with the view of moving headquarters from Huntsville in the course of a few years. This fight for a new location has been before the legislature for the past four years. Just what the result will be this time is problematical, but there is a general feeling that the prison board made an untimely proposal owing to the financial conditions of the state.

Those who are proposing to abolish the income tax in favor of the repeal of the ad valorem tax were a little shocked at the figures issued by the federal government as to the result of the income tax of this year. Last year the government collected at 1 1/2% basis five hundred fifty-nine million dollars. This year the rate of 1 1/2% the income will amount to only four hundred twenty-one million dollars or a reduction of 25% with a rate of three times as great as 1930. Just where the state would land under such conditions has not been explained.

Just who should pay the tax for the support of the state government? More and more every class is trying to shove it off on the other fellow. Business interests and industry are the target of all.

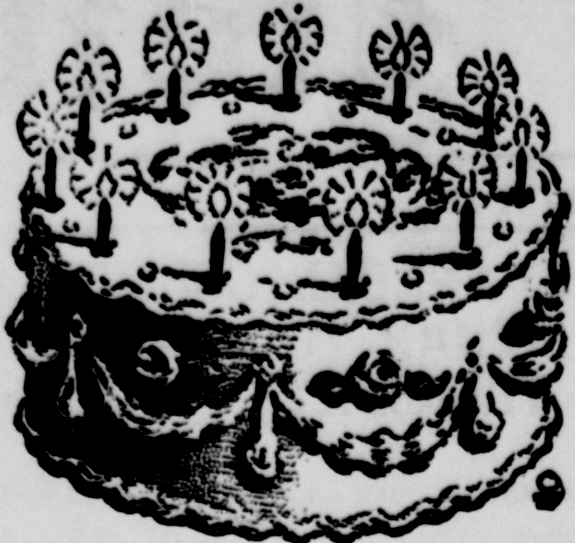

Just what would happen if all the big industries should move their headquarters outside the state boundaries and many of the large factories should leave the state, on account of tax discrimination, has not yet fully been considered as the result of the proposals to shift the tax burdens.

There are interesting questions ahead in attempting to solve the tax problems.

The dairy interests of the state are flocking to the support of Representative A. B. Tarwater of Plainview in his bills to require uniform tests of all buyers of cream, and the tax on oleomargarine. The dairymen have come to the conclusion that something must be done to save the dairy interests of the state.

A constitutional amendment is proposed in which the city and county government may be united and that the manager form may be substituted.

The proposal would be tried in the larger counties of the state if the amendment carries. This is the day of deficient government. People

Another Anniversary

Thirty-four years have come and gone since the first issue of Canyon City News, was issued in a small plant equipped with crude machinery in contrast to that of today. The paper, the outgrowth of several publications which had sprung up in the few years prior to its establishment, only to cease publication, saw this country at that time as almost an open frontier, but its founder had a vision. He could see into the distant future the possibilities of development and progress and in a country so new and promising as this he felt that it would not fail.

During the 34 years since the founding of the News, it has served as a mirror to reflect the advancement of the people of this city and surrounding territory. Recording each week the current happenings which have resulted in a marvelous change in the years, it is practically the oldest living institution in the county.

In the pages of its files have been chronicled the achievements of the people of this country; their goings and comings; marriages, births, and deaths; always pointing with vision of brightness to the future in times of depression and ever ready to aid any worthy cause.

From the little sheet of 34 years ago and the small crudely equipped plant, the News has grown to what it is today—one among the leaders in the newspaper field of the Panhandle, a position which it is proud to claim. It is with the same type of vision, that its founder had, that the News, today, looks into the future with the aim and desire to better serve.

ple have come to the conclusion that they are paying too much for government, especially local government. The general attitude is to cuss the state and federal governments, but citizens who know the facts have long been convinced that it is the local taxes which are the most burdensome. Therefore, any movement which will tend to make county and city government more efficient and reduce the costs should be welcomed by the taxpayers. Were it not for the matter of local pride a half dozen small counties could be administered much more efficient and effective through a union under the manager system than the people now enjoy. But it is not likely that such a proposal shall ever be made. However, there is no reason why the county-city manager plan should not be given a fair trial. Reforms in government come slowly, but this is an opening wedge.

The legislature has spent quite a wad of the people's money in both lauding and condemning the National Democratic Party, and after tiring of such wrangles, which required several hours of debate, those who realized that nothing was being accomplished, decided to leave the destinies of the party to the future and spend the state's money in looking after the business of Texas.

Austin attempted to trade the state about forty thousand dollars worth of water and light for one hundred thousand dollars worth of taxes in the McGregor bill seeking a remission of the Austin taxes for water, light, sewer and police protection. If this bill had passed every city and county in which there were state institutions would seek the same trade. The trade would have been a good one for Austin.

TAX ON OLEOMARGARINE

Representative A. B. Tarwater would put a tax of three cents per pound on oleomargarine sold in Texas. A recent brief by him pointed out that this cheap substitute for butter had no great nutritive value, especially vitamin content, and that as a food it no ways near compared with butter. He estimates that 15 million pounds of oleo are consumed per year in the state and that a three-cent tax would produce nearly half a million dollars in revenue for the state. At the same time he points out that "a careful study of the figures will show that to tax oleo

Mrs. Fred Westin, of 387 E. 57th St. North, Portland, Ore., says: "Tanlac cured my stomach trouble completely after three years suffering. It built me up to perfect health, with a gain of 27 lbs."

Tanlac is wonderful for indigestion—gas pains, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It brings back lost appetite, helps you digest food, and gain strength and weight. three cents per pound will in no way materially affect any Texas industry adversely and that it will not increase the cost of the product to any consumer who wishes to use it in the place of butter."

Every state in the United States, except six, either taxes or regulates the sale of oleo, and in the Dominion of Canada its manufacture, importation and sale are prohibited.

West Texas people, particularly, are interested in some sort of protection against this cheap, imported substitute for butter, and will, doubtless, be interested in this effort of Mr. Tarwater.—Floydada Hesperian.

ONE-ROOM SCHOOL PASSING

The commissioner of education at Washington has concluded that "the little red school house should join the old oaken bucket in the limbo of the past," wherever a substitute is within reach.

The inequality of educational opportunities in rural and urban districts has long been recognized and is only now being corrected on a large scale. The one-room, one-teacher school served well its noble purpose years ago but it can not compete with the modern city or consolidated country school.

A recent survey revealed that a large percentage of the pupils of city schools complete their high school education, but the number of rural pupils who finish high school is comparatively small. Likewise it is the city youth who has the best opportunity to go to college and who most often takes advantage of it.

Although still glorified and sentimentalized, at the same time that it is condemned, the little red schoolhouse is nearing that time when it will live in memory only. In a number of states one-room buildings are being replaced by consolidated schools as rapidly as the money becomes available. Hundreds are abandoned each year. Among the most remarkable aspects of the trend is the suddenness and completeness with which the rural population has deserted the little red schoolhouse, once its pride and glory. The nation is witnessing an educational and intellectual revolution in the "sticks."

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Allen of Pampa were guests in the parental C. O. Cooper home, Sunday.

Mrs. N. W. Uselding of Happy was a visitor in the William Schmitz home, Sunday.

THE EAGLE'S TALE

VOLUME NO. 5

CANYON, TEXAS, MARCH 26, 1931.

NUMBER 26

Students Learn Much During The Activity Period

An activity period of 20 minutes was added to the regular school hours shortly before mid-term.

During this period on Mondays and Fridays each class is divided into two rooms. On Tuesdays the various clubs meet, on Wednesdays, boys' and girls' assembly or class meetings, and on Thursdays, chapel is held.

This activity period has become an important and valuable part of the school system. It gives the student an opportunity to put into practice the things he is learning daily, and to see what he can do. The different types of the programs presented show him something that arouses his interest and gives him a desire to enter into the activities and give his utmost support to the organization in which he is interested and to his school.

Such a period makes a favorable impression on new students and visitors, because it shows that there is an interest in social intercourse between the students and teachers.

The spirit of loyalty to the school and good citizenship is spread through the student body by the period, and real enjoyment is derived from the programs that are given.

TENNIS

Tennis has started at C. H. S. The boys have completed their work on the outdoor court and have been practicing for a week to get a team in shape for some future match games.

The material for the tennis team is: Arthur Robinson, Robert Black, Vincent Lockhart, and George Schmitz. We hope that two of these boys will win the high honors in the games that are to be matched by Mr. McDonald.

EASTER CANTATA

TO BE GIVEN

The Girls' Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Flora Lou Scott, will present a cantata April 6, entitled "The First Easter."

This is one of the presentations which will be given by the Glee Club.

The highest compliment that a business man can pay an individual is to sell on credit; if some Canyon merchant has done this with you, why not strain a point and make him a payment on the account? He probably needs it.

The first optimist was the fellow who bought a second-hand automobile.

Clubs

SCIENCE

Tuesday, March 13, the members of the Science Club assembled and were pleasantly entertained with the following program:

"Will You Lose Your Job Because of a New Machine?"—Clark Ash.

"San Francisco to Have the World's Greatest Bridges"—Ellen Hicks.

"Carving a Mountain Top Into a Statue"—Jessie McDonald.

"Thrilling Stories Stop Beat of Child's Heart"—Pauline Mayben.

"How Wild Oil Wells Are Tamed"—Mary Orton.

This program was greatly enjoyed by all and we are hoping to have more like it in the future.

EL CIRCULO CASTELANO

"El Circulo Castellano" met Tuesday at their regular hour.

H. B. Owen read an interesting story in Spanish about "Joseph and His Twelve Brothers." The remainder of the period was used in working a cross-word puzzle. The club found Miss Foster to be a regular "walking dictionary."

"El Circulo Castellano" thought that this program was very interesting, because work of that kind had never been done before.

LATIN

The Latin Club met Tuesday, March 17, in Miss Jordan's room. A short business meeting was held about the transportation to the tournament. A Latin game was played the rest of the period.

C. H. S. TALKIES

The C. H. S. Talkies held their regular meeting last Tuesday and after Miss Weter announced that the declamation and extemporaneous speaking contests were open, a program was given on movie actors. Vincent Lock gave a report on Dick Grace; Kathryn Robinson gave a report on Friendships Among the Movie Stars. An interesting article on Charlie Chaplin's Favorite Shoes was given by Irving Gamewell. Melva Gamewell gave a talk on Dorothy Sebastian.

TYPE HIGH

Fred E. Wortham of the Canyon News gave a talk to the Type High Club Tuesday. An article about the death of Washington, which appeared in the "Ulster County Gazette" in the latter part of the eighteenth century, was read and discussed. He also gave a brief outline of how the news of that day was collected and the manner in which the paper was printed. Due to the request of the club, Mr. Wortham will return next Tuesday week and tell them of the way in which modern newspapers collect and print news. He has also been asked to give some discussion on essential things which the staff should know in order to put out a better Eagle's Tale.

C.H.S. Debaters Schedule Tilts For This Season

The C. H. S. debate team as worked out a definite schedule as follows:

March 30—At Panhandle: Girls, Robinson and Hickox; boys, Gaede and Brian.

April 6—Panhandle, here: Girls, Lowe and Jameson; boys, Lockhart and Foster.

April 8—Goodnight, here: Girls, Lowe and Jameson; boys, Lockhart and Foster.

The Interscholastic League question: "Resolved: That a substitute for trial by jury should be adopted," is the one being used in these debates.

Reece Hough Is Classed First Clarinet Solo

Reece Hough, a member of the C. H. S. band, won first place as a clarinet soloist in the Panhandle Music Festival held recently in Amarillo.

Jeanette Golden won third place in girls solo. Rosa Cash, Jeanette Golden, and Lilla Beth Burroughs, as the C. H. S. entry in the girls' trio, took third place.

This is the first time that Canyon High School has ever entered the Music Festival, which is an annual event; so it is quite an honor to the school to have entered, for the first time, only three contests and to have won three places.

"CUT OUT MY AD"

"Cut out my ad in the newspaper," a local business man told us this week.

Of course we wanted to know the reason and he told us that he was spending entirely too much money for newspaper advertising.

His advertising in the local paper averaged $12 per month.

Just as a matter of curiosity we checked some other expenditures of this business and found that orders had been placed for $140 worth of calendars. That an ad was bought in two directories that did not have a circulation to exceed 25 in the town and the cost of these two ads amounted to about $30. Trinkets and other items were purchased at a cost of nearly $200. The total of these items charged to advertising on the business man's books was about $400.

The newspaper ad had never exceeded $140 a year. We cut out his ad in the paper, but in our mind we thought, "Advertising, oh what crimes are committed in thy name."—Exchange.

At the last court of honor it was decided to order an archery set. Other equipment will be gotten in the near future, and the scouts will begin to have educational fun.

When Mr. Batchelder, from the speech department of the college was introduced to the students of Canyon High, everyone prepared for fun. In his previous programs he has proved his ability to really entertain them.

His selections for Thursday were: "Check, Please," an original reading; a negro baptism, which was full of fun and laughter, and "The Love of a Half-wit."

From the loud and long applauding following each number, Mr. Batchelder could easily see that he will be welcomed back any time it is possible for him to come.

Like Color . . . the best Gasoline is Blended

THE artist stands before his canvas with color-laden palette. Blues, greens, white and touches of warmer tones are blended by his inspired brush as the waves of the seascape take form. His genius tells him that only through the blending of just the right colors is the ideal result achieved. Otherwise his most painstaking effort could only result in a monotone, wholly lacking in brilliance.

Artistry and genius have their place in the making of CONOCO Gasoline. CONOCO engineers long since have found that the ideal gasoline is a balanced blend of the three types containing the elements most desired in a motor fuel. There is highly volatile Natural Gasoline, to give quick starting. There is Straight-run Gasoline, to give power and long mileage. There is Cracked Gasoline with its well-known anti-knock quality.

Like the artist with his colors, CONOCO refiners take these three types of gasoline in balanced proportions and blend them. The result is as pleasing to the car owner as is a Rembrandt to the art connoisseur. Of course the genius of "knowing how" is the vital element and it is here that CONOCO refiners excel.

Convince yourself of the merit of CONOCO Blended Gasoline. Try it today. You will find this triple-test motor fuel wherever you see the CONOCO Red Triangle.

Exes Bring Back Old-Time Spirit In Chapel Talks

Called upon with very short notice to present a program at the Chapel hour Saturday morning, the W. T. Ex-Student Association, with Willard Vineyard and Felix Phillips of Amarillo as its chief speakers, and Mrs. L. N. George as vocal soloist, gave a most entertaining program before the assembly at that time. L. N. George, secretary of the association, acted as master of ceremonies in the unavoidable absence of Irby Carruth, who was to have been in charge.

The program opened with two songs by Mrs. George, "Keep on Hopin'" and "Farewell, Mr. Piper." Following which, Willard Vineyard introduced by Mr. George, talked to the assembled students on loyalty to their Alma Mater by becoming members of the Ex-Student Association upon leaving W. T. His scholarly presentation of the subject, and his many references to old times in W. T. brought back many pleasant memories to those of the audience who have been here more than one or two sessions. Mr. Vineyard graduated from W. T. in 1928.

Also introduced by Mr. George, Felix Phillips followed Mr. Vineyard's address with an informal discussion of some of the accomplishments, deeds and doings of a few of W. T.'s exes. He gave to his audience some most interesting "inside" information regarding several of the best known. He, like Mr. Vineyard, was instrumental in bringing reminiscent tears and laughter to the listening students by mention of the "good old days."

He especially expressed his regret at not being able to hear the last of President Hill's chapel talks on "The Marks of an Educated Man," due to the fact that he did not begin his work in W. T. until 1919, and graduated in 1926.

Episcopal Student Social Center, and the Work of Mrs. ElizabethCanyon's Little House of Fellowship*Fry Page is Appreciated by All W. T. Students and Ex-Students

The Little House of Fellowship, the Episcopal Student Center of Canyon, is the pet project of the Episcopal churches of North Texas. In the bishop's annual report at the recent convocation at San Angelo, Bishop Seaman said: "The district branch has paid its promised three hundred dollars to the building fund of the Little House of Fellowship at Canyon where we are doing the most far-reaching piece of work in the district. I scarcely ever visit a town in the district but what someone tells of his or her experiences within the last six years at this little institution; and where ever our district work is known at all in the province or elsewhere in the country, it is largely in connection with this project."

The Little House of Fellowship in Canyon has meant a great deal to the students of W. T., both in and out of the church. Since the arrival of Mrs. Elizabeth Fry-Page, Episcopal student secretary, in Canyon on March 3, 1929, two thousand and sixty-seven people have been entertained at the Little House, a large majority of them being college students. Many of the leading college organizations have been entertained there; and a great many visitors of the Episcopal church who have visited Canyon and the college have been able to meet the students and faculty members of W. T. at the Little House. While Mrs. Page invites many individuals and groups to the House, she welcomes those who come without invitation, feeling enough at home to bring their own friends for a visit and a cup of tea.

During the past year there were sixty-five impromptu groups entertained and forty-three specially arranged gatherings; whereas last year there were only thirty-two impromptu groups and seventy-one specially planned meetings. This shows that the students are getting more and more into the spirit of the House, and it is hoped that this year the proportion of gatherings will be even larger. Mrs. Page wishes the students to understand that it is not necessary to be dressed up and have a special invitation to feel free to come to the Little House of Fellowship.

On Tuesday, March 3, the anniversary of the opening of the Little House, open house was observed there informally. A delightful letter taking notice of the occasion was received from an ex-student, who said: "It has been at the Little House of Fellowship that I have met so many prominent people; and more important still, it is there that I have been able to bring my friends for a chat and a cup of tea. I am looking forward to many more visits to the Little House with you, and wish to offer congratulations upon your two years of successful work and play at Canyon."

Other students and ex-students of W. T. Heartily echo these congratulations and good wishes.

As a speaker I'm just about the best janitor in town. Last week I almost had an opportunity to speak twice.

My first speech was at the high school before a group of fine healthy and intelligent boys and girls, but the speech was so rotten I was stopped before I had an opportunity to finish it. That's number one.

Then Friday night at the dairyman's banquet, W. H. Upchurch started off like he was going to introduce the main speaker of the evening and called my name. Of course I rose to my feet in a standing position with a broad, gracious like smile across my crimson face, and before I had an opportunity to speak a word he ordered me to sit back down. Gosh what a close call.

Speaking of the dairyman's banquet it was swell. Several weeks ago I had a tooth pulled out and when I was informed of the banquet and handed an invite to it, I rushed back to the dentist's office and had a new tooth put in.

It was stated that the banquet was held by the dairymen for their families and a few of their friends. Looked to me like it was the friends and a few of the dairymen. That is unless I am badly mistaken in the number of men about this town who milk their own cows.

Speaking of folks being dairymen I was a dairymen once. Yes sir, I owned a cow and had to walk when I went places. So I went out of the dairy business by trading her for a Ford. Then I wore the Ford out and have been walking since and am an ex-dairymen.

Those fellows out in all parts of Randall county know how to throw a real banquet when they start one. Of course they had plenty of milk, butter and ice cream.

I can see only one reason why so many of these Canyon people were invited. And that was to show them how good old cow butter tastes as compared to oleo, for the butter was piled up. If I had gathered up the butter that was at three vacant plates at the table back of me I could have molded it and sold it for enough to buy oleo to last me two months, because I don't eat butter substitutes. If I can't eat cow butter I don't eat that's all.

By the way that good butter was made by Mrs. C. C. Stewart. The Stewart farm, you know, is one of the leading Jersey farms in the Panhandle and Mr. Stewart has been regarded as one of the leading dairymen of this section for several years.

Susie, our dumb office steno, thinks that "plug" tobacco means the kind that old horses chew.

My friend old Farmer Hogfissel states that it is always a pleasant thing to listen to both sides of an argument until some fellow wants to know your downright opinion on the question.

FREMONT MEAD, W. T. EX, MADE AMARILLO DEAN

ENGLISH TEACHER IN AMARILLO COLLEGE GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

John Fremont Mead, professor of English in Amarillo College, has been appointed dean of the college by the board of trustees. Mr. Mead, who took his position as English teacher in the Amarillo College at the opening of the school last fall, graduated from W. T. in 1927, taking a B. A. degree. In addition to his bachelor's degree, Mr. Mead has a master's degree from the University of Texas, and several years teaching experience in high schools and colleges in Texas. He was at one time teacher of junior and senior high school English in the W. T. demonstration high school, and was later an assistant in the college English department.

"Mr. Mead has won a reputation in the Amarillo College for being thorough and exact instructor in freshman English," said President B. E. Masters, of that institution. "He dislikes any kind of sham in class work and students have come to realize that only hard work will satisfy him. At the same time they respect and have a high regard for him because they know that he is sincere and fair in his dealings with them."

As dean of the college, Mr. Mead's duties will be varied, but will consist primarily in handling all absences from the college and in approving courses selected by the students. He will continue his English courses.

The Charm of Copenhagen

By L. A. OSGOOD.

The oddly dressed "damers" from Amager, who have their stands in the broad Højbroplads, just off Gammel Strand, are altogether pleasant and quiet, in contrast to their scolding sisters of the eel tubs. Their products are vegetables, fruits, and flowers. Such a splash of color as flows the length of Højbroplads! And how cheap the flowers are! A dozen large carnations—with one or two extra, in way of full measure—for a krone (twenty-seven cents plus). In Copenhagen one could fill his house with color and fragrance for almost nothing.

For a century and a half this flower market has flourished there in the inner town. Again and again we strolled its verigated length, desiring to carry away all its tantalizing splendor to our hotel room. We could not do that; nor could we carry much more than a pleasant memory of it with us from Denmark. A few flowers for our stateroom, and that was all. But long after the memory of silt eels squirming in the firm grasp of the fish-wives in Gammel Strand has faded, we shall be remembering the sweet-tempered and gentle-mannered women of the flower stalls in Højbroplads.

Thinking now of the ladies from Amager and their brilliant market, our reminiscent vision took its flight to the paradise-like gardens maintained by the Royal Horticultural Society. Such flowers as we had seen there! Not naturally grown garden flowers like those in Højbroplads, but flowers produced under a system of highly meticulous cultivation. Flowers of every variety, large and small. Flowers familiar in our experience, and flowers strange even to the most fantastical imagination. Exotic shapes, some of them; colorings ravishing in their vividness or ethereally delicate in their pastel shades and tints. Fuschia trees and rose trees; the fuschias like tall stands of elfin bells! Dahlias that teased the eye to tearful appreciation! And lovely little blossoms whose names we could not now recall, fragile and spirituelle, that must have sprung into being where the dancing feet of Oberon and his Titania but carelessly caressed the earth.

In these enchanting gardens one finds quiet nooks with quaint benches where the older population of the city may sit and dream away in blest retirement the last short days of life. Here also one discovers a reserved retreat for afternoon coffee and cakes—a secluded place where he may furtively observe Danish ladies enjoying their diminutive cigars.

All these things, and more, we recalled as we lazily leaned upon our deck railing and the western sun dropped surely toward the far sea line.

We recalled the day we had visited the "Rundetaarn" (the Round Tower), built in the year 1624 by King Christian IV and today standing awkwardly in the middle of Kbmagergade, much to the annoyance of vehicular traffic. The tall thing (it is thirty-six meters high) was set up for astronomical purposes and was so used up until the year 1860. There is inside it a fine spiral ascent—minus stairs—that leads to the platform of the tower, from whence one gains an excellent view of the city and the surrounding territory.

There is told an interesting tale of how Peter the Great, when on a visit to Copenhagen in 1716, rode horseback up the smoothly rising spiral. We were informed, too, that the Empress Katharina drove up to the observatory platform in her carriage. My wife and I had neither horse nor carriage, but we could thrill over the fact that it was our privilege to tread in the paths of the departed mighty of the earth and to see a newer and a greater glory than it had been theirs to look upon.

Close to the Round Tower we came upon a delightfully cluttered toy shop in which a laddie, basking in the radiance of the girl clerks' indulgent smiles, might set up a cardboard theater or spin a musical top with its flashing paper flags of many nations.

Theaters and the flags of many nations! The recollection of these carried our memory across to the city of the Tivoli and the Wivil. The Wivil, in every respect typical of the Danish capital, is perhaps the largest restaurant in the world.

The service is unsurpassed; and for three and one-half krone (less than a dollar) one may indulge in a three-course dinner—all that he can comfortably eat, and at the same time he may enjoy a generous program of varied symphonic and popular music by a large and excellent orchestra seated in its dazzling, copper-lined music booth.

After a lingering dinner—followed with delicious wines, fragrant cigars, and sparkling conversation, there is the kaleidoscopic Tivoli (Copenhagen's beautiful, but conservative "Coney Island"), for a full evening's enjoyment. You cannot hurry there; for you are in Denmark and must do as the Danes do—take your recreation at a leisurely pace, with the lingering delight of a phlegmatic voluptuary.

The Tivoli is not so much like Coney Island as it is like the old-time "gardens" some of our American cities knew back in the glamorous eighties and the mauve nineties. One of the largest amusement parks in the world, the Tivoli is like unto none of them. It is different, extraordinary—possessed of an individuality distinctly its own.

Situated in the very heart of Copenhagen, it is built around a lake—the last remnant of the old fortification moats. At times there are mimic military maneuverings participated in by youths and small boys, gaily uniformed and with cavalry and cannon—all to the accompaniment of martial music and the floating flags of many nations. We witnessed one such display, the sight of which stimulated our imaginations into recreating the days of Copenhagen's vanished military splendors.

Leaning together on the ship rail, we talked of the romantically sloping and winding promenades, where we delighted to stroll with the comfortably moving crowds through the darker places or under brilliantly-colored illuminations. We especially enjoyed the Hollandish village built around the lake, with its quaint houses and lugubrious windmills and its huge artificial tulips resplendent with electric glows in their red and purple cups. How charming, too, had been the demure Danish girls, costumed in the pinks and blues made familiar to the tourist world by the frauleins of Marken and Volendam, as they strolled about the lake, or leaned from cottage windows to flirt with bold dragons.

How picturesque had appeared the antique medieval tower rising ruggedly from the shaded waters of the lake. Back and forth over its drawbridge, that had been lowered to the lake shore, paced a guard in all the trappings of the feudal soldier. Quite a thrill he gave us as his armor clanked, clanked to the rhythmic beat of his booted tread.

Beautifully done, all of it—the village and the castle, with no sparing of expense. Its creator aimed to please the fancy of child and adult; and he succeeded marvelously well, for the admiring crowds lined the lake shore. The Danes never stint themselves in creating their pleasures; and beauty touches all that they create, be its intended existence ever so transient.

But of all that host of entertaining spots enclosed within the magic walls of Tivoli, we thought the best to be the pantomime theater. It is built after the Chinese style of architecture, and for a front curtain has a gigantic peacock whose opalescent tail folds up and sinks with the bird beneath the stage when the play is to be revealed. In this lilliputian playhouse, whose audience sits or stands before the stage with only the starry heavens for canopy, Columbine coquettes with diamonded Harlequin, and Pierrot plots with the lady's irate parent to grind poor Harlequin up in a sausage mill. We saw the masked lover so ground up, and then suddenly and magically restored after Pierrot had gloated over each separate piece of the lithe Harlequin's anatomy.

Pierrot may grind up Harlequin and play dastardly tricks upon Columbine's grumpy papa, but the children of Copenhagen are very, very fond of him. They will not leave the theater after the final curtain, until he, in response to their insistent calling, comes before the curtain and makes them a foolish little speech.

There are other and longer pantomimes for the older folk, which creations we now recalled with pleasure. How beautiful we had thought the scenery, painted as it was in the heavy and realistic Teutonic and Scandinavian manner with its greens and browns and reds! Quite like the rich etchings we had long admired. And how interesting we had found the old-fashioned, highly romantic plots! How lovely the exquisitely done ballets! There is but one pantomime theater that keeps alive the old traditions, and it survives only in fair Copenhagen.

The sudden fanning of our cheeks by the chilling breeze that came darting over the waters, momentarily broke our reverie. Clouds were beginning to float their gray shadows across the erstwhile quiet sound, and here and there the white caps were sparkling their foam in the shifting patches of sunlight. Might it rain? We would not mind, for a gentle rain at sea is a lovely sight. Rain! Forgetful of the present moment, we again plunged into our reverie. We thought of the one rainy day we had experienced in Copenhagen. When it rains there, it rains! That day we had loafed within doors, regaling ourselves with our flowers from Højbroplads and with American and English newspapers. What a novelty it had been to throw a krone down to the hurdy-gurdy man in the alley court! We had not aimed well, and the coin had struck the pavement this side the high fence that separated the hotel yard from the alley; but a bright-eyed chamber-maid, who had been leaning from a hall window to listen to the music, had hustled down the stairs, scampered into the yard, picked up the coin, and laughingly handed it over the fence to the hurdy-gurdy man's partner. Then such bowing and scraping as there was to the lady and gentleman in the high up hotel window! After that so much more grinding out of squeaky tunes that "Ti Kroner" might well have been a small price for relief from the raucous serenading.

We could have lingered indefinitely in charming Copenhagen, but summer's days were fleeting and we must return to America to grind out — not tunes from a painted hurdy-gurdy, but cold, silver dollars from our job; silver dollars with which to buy bread and butter and to keep the roof over our heads; and, if fortune favored us, out of them to lay by a few now and then to build up the wherewithal for the dreamed-of return to Copenhagen, King Christian's alluring town on Sealand Isle.

Our sailing date had been set for a peaceful Sabbath morning, but our ship was tardy and the hour of departure moved up to mid-afternoon. Herein Fate favored us, for in the extra time afforded we found opportunity to worship in the English Church.

St. Albans, it is called, and it was built in 1887 by the English government and since then maintained by them for the English inhabitants of Copenhagen. It is set down close to the shore and not so far from the little bronze mermaid—a bit of old England in the exotic capital of placid Denmark. Within the stone walls of St. Albans that Sunday forenoon, it was our privilege to hear a better sermon than we had listened to in any church or cathedral in England. The music was good, too—both organ and choir. After the regular service, we remained with a few others for communion, an unexpected privilege before going to sea for the tempestuous eleven days voyage from Copenhagen up around the northern tip of Scotland and then down the world to Portland, Maine.

Signals were given, and the propellers began their angry churning. Our reverie was broken; this time, permanently. The sound had become rough, and the wind whipped the stinging spray athwart our faces; but we clung to the rail—our wishful eyes yearning toward the diminishing, green-sheathed towers and spires of good old Bishop Absalon's city—Denmark's colorful capital: Copenhagen, flaxen-haired bride of the sea.

"Yes," whispered my wife, laying her hand gently over mine. "Yes, we shall come back—some day!"

For us, it was not "Good-bye, Copenhagen!" Only a gently sighed "Auf Wiedersehen."

Fifty years ago only a rich man could afford to burn 25 candles to read by—and, if he burned them, he got no more light than the man of most modest means gets from one electric lamp today.

to have Mr. Edgell present at the meeting next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgell celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary only a few days ago. The following is a part of the newspaper account of the celebration:

"Sunday, March 15, will mark a special milestone in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Edgell, as they celebrate their fifty-first anniversary of their wedding.

"Mr. Edgell is now 76 and his wife 74. They came to "South" McAlester from Rind Creek, Mo., 36 years ago and at once established a printing plant in which they issued a paper known as "The Wasp" and long to be remembered by the pioneer settlers here.

"Quite a few citizens had their ambitions stung by sharp jabs of Edgell in campaign times and the cleverly gotten up sheet undoubtedly figured in the line-up of early officials in the first town government. His wife always aided in the publication of the paper.

"Both Mr. and Mrs. Edgell retired to a more quiet life some years ago. Mrs. Edgell's hobby is roses and flowers. John Edgell finds it an advantage to share honors when the wife's garden is praised by visitors."

Spirea Selected
Official Shrub
Of This City

Spirea, or bridal wreath, was selected by the residents of Canyon to be the official flower of the city, according to announcement made by Mrs. C. M. Dowlen. The selection was made under the auspices of the City Federation of Women's clubs and by secret ballot.

A committee composed of Mrs. C. M. Dowlen, Mrs. John Knight, and Mrs. C. R. Flesher received and counted the votes. The rose was the second choice, and lilac third.

The spirea is a hardy, perennial flowering shrub and is native to this climate. It is easily grown since only a cutting is needed to obtain a start and once being rooted it requires very little care.

It was also announced by Mrs. Dowlen that the various women's clubs of the city are planning to do considerable landscaping around the court house this spring and will plant flowers and shrubs to beautify the city's central building. This work is being done by special permission of County Judge S. B. Orton.
